

RATA Update: December 2013

Traffic Calming project - Rogate:

The open meeting in village hall on 2nd December was well attended and there was lively discussion after Ben Hamilton-Baillie's presentation. It was especially pleasing that Peter Bradley and Richard Wells from WSCC Highways Department attended and Peter was able to confirm to the audience that Highways can see the appeal of this approach to traffic and speed management and is broadly supportive.

By the end of the meeting, there was a decent selection of comments for Ben to take away and work on. Timing wise, with work pressures as they are, HBA is unlikely to start working in Rogate until the new year. This is disappointing, in particular, because this delay puts the traffic project behind the NP draft which is coming up for review next week. However, we will make sure the NP and the Traffic plan work together.

Dan Sanders is setting up a meeting for early in January to review the site with engineers and residents & to discuss what can be done to start to improve it. I will notify residents of the date and subsequently the outcome of this is in the next R&T News.
